selous of the mischief. If he walks with his wife, he has to be on his guard all the time. If the wind blows, he is fettered by her superfluity of garments; and if it rains, no umbrella can cover them both. If the weather is settled fine, the lady's train raises a cloud of dust, and sweeps the path of all loose filth as they go. If they enter the parks, the steel rim of her petticoat cuts his leg as they squeeze through the narrow gate; and if they try the high road, there is too much probability that the whole apparatus may become inverted by a sudden gust catching the balloon. Umbrellas get turned wrong side out; and the existing skirt is much more easy to invert. If it is to be a drive, and not a walk, the good man runs the risk of being dismissed as a haughty actress dismissed an old friend. With a vehement prohibitive gesture she drove him back from the carriage-step, with "Pardon me—I and my dress occupy the earriage." The same women who in their youth marvelled at the slavery to fashion which induced their grandmothers to kneel in the carriage for a drive of many miles to save their lofty head-dresses, now banish husband or father to the box, or compel them to walk, to make room for the accommodation of floances or steel springs. Sunday is changed. The children cannot go to church, because mamma leaves no room for them; and papa has to stand aside, in the face of the congregation, while his lady is effecting the difficult enterprise of entering her pew. Are the ladies aware that the duliness of church is relieved to bachelor gentlemen by the amusement of watching, and afterwards discussing, the comparative skill of the ladies in passing their pew doors? We are concerned to find that a new method of getting up prayer books and bibles for church use, enables the ladies to find their own od of getting up prayer books and bibles for th use, enables the ladies to find their own ement while apparently engaged in worship ems to be really the fact that the ladies' prayer in seems to be really the fact that the ladies' prayer jooks have a small mirror bound up with the coverprobably of about the same size as that in the hat evowns of dandles, which they consult while devoordly covering faces on entering their pews.

In the present travelling season, the trip is found a pursuit of pleasure under diffiinflies, unless the ladies will rotrench their garments. It is now a common thing to take more places teverywhere than the number of individuals requiring them; and on cross roads, where coaches and posting are the only means of conveyance, the gentlemen have no chance of room unless the ladies had entered the continuous of the same state unsafe for children and other unwary passengers amidst the sweep of hoops and hidden elothes-lines. It is out of the question for the ladies to trust themselves to a pony for a mountain ride, while carrying a balloon about their waists; and they cannot climb to the ridges in a dress as heavy as themselves, and longer than their own heels. If they venture on foreign travel, the prevailing fashion compels a kind and amount of custom-house search highly distasteful to any family man. And where is the recompense of all this? If it is troublesome at home that no wardrobe or closet will hold the house-hold gowns, it is no compensation to witness the effect of those dresses in company. An admiring father, who till lately delighted in his daughter's grace and lightness of movement, and her elegant figure, now sees her deformed and trammelled, whether at the piane, in the dance, or simply sitting on the sofa. In the first case, she samper the summary of the sofa. In the first case, she samply sitting on the sofa. In the first case, she same shoulders, while hoops and the waters concealed all below the waist. A girl at a party now looks the arrorm only at arm's length; in the second, she steers about like a hunchback, all ruffed and frilled as hunchbacks are wont to be. There is an anecdote to he shoulders, while hoops and the waters concealed all b

In the United States, an unripe citizen, who has scoured through Europe before settling down as a country lawyer in the back of his State, builds himself a wooden house in the massive Grecian style, though be has a German barn, with six-and-twenty windows in it, for a neighbor, on the one hand, and a Dutch dwelling, with its spacious stoop, on the other. In Louisiana, between a dusty road and a mody, mirror like bayon, a British emigrant builds himself a house just like the one he lived in at home; rad brick, without a yard of porch or verandah, or anything that can give shade. And so on, in the matter of domestic architecture, when impulses and emotions are active, and judgment and taste undeveloped. The case is parallel with that of Englishwomen in regard to dress. The remedy is the same in both instances. The remedy is the same in both instances the sate, if duly cultivated, will readily perceive what ernamention naturally grows out of the use. We would fain think that our countrywomen may attain in time that true self-respect which will destroy the last degree of resemblance between them and the aboriginal savages—a resemblance which they themselves at present perpetuate. We need not point out the analogies between savage and fashionable decorations: they are obvious and mortifying cound, from the duchess who makes holes in her ears, as the Feejee woman makes a hole in her nose to hang levels by, to the maid servant who this summer has had an entire clothes line hemmed into ber petitioat, thereby likening herself to the squaw who winds herself about with a hundred yards of wampum. We would rather refer our countrywomen to themore refined works of nature than to the sity and conceited savage. Throughout the range of nimitated nature the splender of ornamentation is assigned to the male, whale a quiet grace is the appropriate charm of the female. Throughout the universe of birds and insects it is so; and among the superior and the superior and modern the proper server of the female form in tron, as the currie

Meantime there are grounds for some degree of hope or a miligation of existing evils. The repeated failures of the silk crop must so enhance the cost of the most expensive fabrics as to compel an economy which will probably be veiled under a compilete change of fashion. There is always an outstanding probability of political changes in France; and it seems to be the general impression that the probability can hardly be stronger than it is now. It would be the smallest consequence (in regard to the dress question) that the exhibitions of fantastical fashions would cease at the Tulieries. A more important consideration is, that the social corruption fostered in France by the autocratic rule of the last six years—a corruption fearfully on the increase from year to year—would give way to that earnestness, and that power of self-denial and frugality, which the French have always shown themselves capable of on critical occasions. It is with some humiliation that we refer to the fortunes of France as a condition of improvement in England; but such are the real grounds of the case. We are bound to the course of French fashions in the matter of dress; and we see no sign anywhere, form the highest lady in the land to the maid of all work, of an impulse to independence, strictly personal as the matter is.

It is otherwise in another country, where the fine ladies are even more enslaved to Paris fasions than in our own. In the United States a dress reform scication has been for some time organized, and it appears to be prospering well. Physicians of eminence support it, and that is a favorable sign. No little courage is required to wear a new set of garments in a community where men are, at least, as indisposed as they are here to allow women to judge of their own affairs, and where the majority of women are, at least, as superstitious and timid under the dictation as they are here to allow women to judge of their own affairs, and where the majority of women are, at least, as superstitious and timid under the dictation as they are here to allow on the papears of the organity when it derives from its fitness and case, it article of its constitution, in these words:

The objects of this association are to induce a reform in woman's dress, especially in regard to long skirts, tight waists, and all other styles and modes which are incompatible with good health, refined taste, simplicity, economy, and beauty.

These are sensible objects; and while they are promoted with all proper regard to individual liberty and taste, they will have our hearty good will. We can wish nothing better for our countrywomen than that they may attain to a degree of independent good sense which will qualify them for a similar reform on their own behalf.

England Consents to the Purchase of Cuba by the United States—Fellow Fever—Arrival of Troops and Free Ap-

My authority for the following is undoubted; indeed it may almost be looked upon as an official communica-tion. England, tired of the trickery and want of good faith displayed by Spain, will no longer offer any opposi-tion to a change in the proprietorship of this island. "Now's the day and now's the hour," then, for Mr. Bu-chanan to immortalize himself, by carrying out the doc-trines of the Ostend manifesto; and as from the recent commercial crisis in the United States it would not per-haps be convenient to pay the large amount offered some time age for Cuba, there is another and a readier method time ago for Cuba, there is another and a readier method of obtaining her, which I believe would be generally popular throughout the United States. As one of your largest New York merchants who passed the last winter in this city frequently said in my hearing. "Cuba does not per form her duty to mankind and the civilization of the age in which we live." England, feeling this, would be glad to see her transfer her allegiance to another more sensible and civilized Power. Surely there are questions enough, the settlement of which Spain craftily enough continues to defer, which would justify the United States in instantly adopting the dermer resort.

Thearn there have been a few new cases of yellow fever, happily, however, of a much milder type than previously.

Theatrical and Musical Affairs.

Sacred Concent and Orarorio.—M'me La Grange, Miss Miner, Messrs. Vieuxtemps, Labocetta, Gassier, Perring and a host of other popular artists are to combine their talents in a grand entertainment to be given at the Academy of Music this evening. The programme, though quite lengthy, contains nothing but the finest musical compositions.

BEGADWAY THEATRE.—Mr. McKean Buchanan, the American tragedian, who has been for some years successfully engaged in gathering fame and wealth in other lands, is to re-appear before a New York audience to morrow evening, in Shakspere's tragedy of "King Lear." He will be supported by Mrs. L. W. Davenport, Messrs. C. W. Clarke and other favorites. other favorites.

Niblo's Garden.—The renowned Gabriel Ravel, the veritable prince of pantominists, is to return to the scene of his early triumphs to morrow evening, and, in conjunction with his brothers Antoine and Jerome, will, as heretofore, elicit enthusiastic applanse. Gabriel is to play his great part of Roquinet in "M. Dechalumeau," after which comes the popular "Boreas."

lar "Boreas."

Bowery Theatre.—The drama entitled the "Mysteries of Paris," which had an extraordinary run at this house some years ago, is to be revived with all its original effects to-morrow evening. Mr. Eddy and Miss St. Clair enact the chief characters. The latter will also play six parts in the "Star of the West." "Rose Clinton" is to be the closing piece.

BURTON'S.—Shakepere's tragedy of "Henry the Eighth," which is to be revived to-morrow evening, will enable the admirers of the great poet to see Miss Cushman in her celebrated character of Queen Katharine. She is to be seconded by Mr. Fisher as Cardinal Wolsey, Mr. Mark Smith as the King, and other favorites in the minor parts.

Wallack's.—A fresh comic piece, bearing the peculiar title of "Wanted, a Widow with Immediate Possession," and represented as having been written expressly for this theatre by Messrs. Dion Bourcicault and Charles Seymour, is to be produced tomorrow. It will be preceded by the pleasing drama of the "invisible Husband" and followed by "Uncle Fooyle."

LAURA KERNE'S.—The romantic spectacle, entitled the "Sea of Ice," having proved highly successful, the fair directress again announces it for tomorrow night. Misses Keene, Wells and Thompson, and Messre. Jordan, Wheatleigh, Jeffer-son and Stodart perform in it; the scenery is elegant, and the music charming. music charming.

ITALIAN OFERA.—Verdi's "Il Travatore" is to be given, with an unusually fine cast, at the Academy, to-morrow evening. Leonora is to be represented by La Grange, Azucena by D'Angri, Manrico by Bignardi, Count de Luna by Ardavani (his début), and Fernando by Gassier. Such an array of talent is seldom presented.

AMERICAN MUSEUM .-- The new dramatic company has proved very successful—remarkably so considering the times—and the drama called the "Rose of Penrith," which is to be repeated to-morrow night, has made a decided bit. Two farces, "Crossing the Line" and the "Irish Haymaker" are to be performed by favorite artists in the afternoon.

George Christy and Woods Minstriels contrive to fill their new hall to repletion nearly every night, notwithstanding its great capacity. They have re-arranged their programme of songs, dances, &c. for to-morrow evening, but adhere to their last and very laughable farce of "Peter Piper Pepper iPodge," in which George has a fine part.

The Bryants are still at Mechanics' Hall, where they nightly entertain about as many of the laughter loving community as can be comfortably accommodated. To-morrow they announce a variety of peculiar songs and dances, the "Shaking Quaker Burlesque" and a new target excursion burlesque, denominated the "Colored Filibusters."

Prendergast's Minstrels will amuse the numerous frequenters of the Olympic with a choice selection of the most popular Ethiopian minstrelsy tomorrow evening. The fashionable colored folks of the North and the eccentric plantation darkies of the South are to be represented in all their glory. The "Rival Darkies" is the afterpiece.

Formos.—The Louis For thus speaks of Mr. and Mrs.

C. R. Thorne:—"The gentleman has a striking figure, a powerful voice and an evident capacity for melo-dramatic parts. The energy that he infuses into the delivery of even the slightest speech might elsewhere be deemed an unnecessary expenditure of force, but on this stage the vehement applause that rewards his vocal exertions shows at least that they gratify the auditors to whose judgment he has to appeat. In the disguise of the Moor, (in the drama of the Avenger.) he kept up the accianations of his audione by every possible defance of his enemy and denunciation of French tyranny, and after stabbing himself and being thrown into the most, on his subsequent re-appearance as the avenger, John di Procida himself, in a glittering dress and with somewhat more than his old vitality about him, the enthusiasm of the speciators attained its highest pitch. Mrs. Chas. Thorne, the representative of Stella di Procida, is what would be called on the other side of the Atlantic a splendid woman. As an actress she is considerably beyond the average dimensions, and she shares the energy of her husband in giving full force to every syllable she has to utter. * * in the concluding farce of the Widow's Victim, Mrs. Therne showed her versatility by appearing as Jane Chatterley, a lequacious soubrette.

The French theatre at St. Petersburg, although well at tended, does not support itself, and costs the Emperor nearly 500,000 francs a year. The receipts for two years have been as follows:—In 1835, 110 performances, 251,000 francs. Now each year the expenses have reached about 180,000 rubles, or 720,000 francs. The salaries are very costly, and the mise en seens and costumes very rich, while there is a new piece brought out evry week.

The Princess' theatre was elegantly decorated during the late recess, and the new drop curtain is said to be a masterpiece of its kind. The chief object presented to the audience in this painting is a large figure of Shakapere on a pedestal, supposed to be discovered by the withdrawal of two side curtains, decorated with medalions, in which are depicted the tragic and comic muses. The panels of the dress circle are adorned with a series of paintings from the works of Shakapere, among which the "Vision of Queen Katharine," the "Trial of Hermione," the "First appearance of the Ghost of Hamlet," "Richard II abdicating his Crown," the "Oanldron scene in Macbeth," "Fall-staff contemplating the body of Hotspur," "Hubert and Arthur," "Titani in her Bower," and the "Interview between Prospero and Aried in the presence of the sleeping Mirandi," conspicuously appear. Between the panels are seen a series of the Shaksperian kings, all at full length and historically costumed.

"Un Curloso Accidente."

The musical event of the week (saya a letter from Paris) has been the reproduction of "Rigoletto" at the Italian Opera, the principal characters being sustained by M'lle. St. Urbain, Madame Nantier-Biddee, Mario and Corst. The fair debutante, M'lle. St. Urbain, is a young lady of very preposeessing appearance, a native, we believe, of France, but who has studied in Italy, and been well taught. Urbain at the commencement of the opera showed an amount of timidity which detracted from her natural gifts; but, as the opera advanced, her clear, freak soprano voice gained is power and confidence, and at the close of the duet with Mario in the night love scene, it became evident that she would gain on the public. Such proved to be the result of increased confidence, for at the close of the syening she had fairly won her inurels. Madaine Didie s Madaician was a charming bit of acting, she made the most of her trifling part, and sang with delightful coquetry and intelligence. Neither Mario nor Corst were in you.

New York Chamber of Commerce. The regular monthly meeting of the Chamber of Com-merce was held Thursday at the Merchants' Bank, at 1 P. M., Pelatiah Perit, President, in the chair. After reading the minutes, Mr. Royal Phelps was d a member of the Committee of Arbitration.

THE WARRIOUSING COMPANY.

CHAS. H. MAUSHALL called up the question of the proposed warehousing company. He was of opinion that it was a private enterprise, and should not be brought be-fore the Chamber. If the Chamber endorsed this company, and it should fail, like many other companies have pany, and it should lail, fixe many other companies have done, the widows and poor people who had invosted their means would blame this body for its endorsement. Waltrin Gaurrins saked that the matter be postponed, as there was so elim a meeting.

Anson G. Frizers asked the Chair if the government was responsible for the mal-administration of the affairs in the Bonded Warchouse. He knew that it was not respon-sible for property lost by fire, but suppose that goods should be stolen—what then? nould be stolen—what then?

The Chair was of opinion that the government was liale in a degree, but could not say to what extent.

Several other members expressed opinions, but none new what the law was on the subject. Here the matter council.

A communication was received from the Bengal Cham-ier of Commerce, enclosing their half-yearly report.

The Chamber then adjourned.

THE ACCIDENT TO THE STEAMER GOLDEN GATE.

On Tuesday evening, about half-past 11 o'clock, when 350 miles below San Francisco, the centre shatt broke, thereby disabling the starboard engine and wheel. Only one-half of a revolution was made before the engines were stopped. The following afternoon, at 1 o'clock, (having drifted thirty miles during the repairs.) every obstacle was removed, and the steamer was on her way to San Francisco.

Our informant believes that of the 650 passengers on board not more than 100 were aware that any accident had occurred until the following morning. So quiet, so orderly and so systematically were all things conducted, that the passengers unanimously resolved to hold a meeting to testify their admiration of the manner in which the commander had discharged his duties.

The meeting was called to order by Mr. O. P. Sutton, who nominated Col. S. W. Inge as chairman. Messrs.

REVIEW OF COMMERCIAL APPAIRS.

[From the Alta California, Oct. 5.]

Every year subsequent to that in which this city sprung into commercial importance, it has been noticed that trade reached its lowest ebb during the month proceding the advent of the rainy season. The present year forms no exception to the rule, and we have again for this mail to chronicle extreme quietude. We can scarcely venture to say depression, for the market at the present writing is in a healthy, and, with respect to a few leading articles, perhaps in a hopeful condition, while the accounts which have recently reached us from the other side, relative to decreased shipments, warrant confidence in the future. In the meantime a number of influences which will shortly be brought to bear on the State at large, and of a most tavorable nature, impart steadiness to the above deductions—we allude to the rainy season just at hand, which will anew develope our vast auriferous resources—the opening up of postal routes across the Plains, and the probabilities that from this time on, in tabular statements of population, we will have to record the fact of large additions by the land routes, instead of the simply stationary condition of matters which has prevailed with respect to this most important feature of our presperity during the post two years. As before stated, with respect to trade, we have no particular features to comment upon as having transpired during the fortnight. A moderate degree of activity has ruled in the provision market, and for some articles, which are by no means in abundant supply, full rates have been obtained, and advance is claimed by holders. Extra clear bacon has been in demand, and the stock is very light. Hams, also, at the close have changed hands rather brinkly. Lard has been in steady request, but in pork little has been done in teas; a few loss were little more the por any large parcels of brandy or whiskey forced on the market.

With respect to monetary affairs, leans on merchandise securities were a little more stringent this steamer than they were, owing to exertions made by parties here to reinit as largely as possible to consigners at home, where, at histocounts, California aid was very particularly needed; as a general thing, however, there is an abundance at the usual rates, or 1½ per cent on real estate, and 2 a 2½ per cent on merchandise.

The receipts of gold dust since the sailing of the last steamer have been very light, owing to the excessive dryness of the season. At the close the supply of bars is very short, and they are quotable at 890 a 895 par.

There is nothing doing in foreign coin, owing to the scarcity. Mexican dollars would readily command 15½ per cent premium.

The stock market is very inactive and bare of desirable per cent premium.

The stock market is very inactive and bare of desirable descriptions. A lot of $10,000 State warrants changed hands at $2c. Sales of Navigation stock have been made at our quotations. The list will be found corrected be The Prices Current and Shipping List, in the financia

The Prices Current and Shipping List, in the financial review for this steamer, says —Notwithstanding the many embarrassments under which the financial affairs of California have been placed, some of which were inseparable from her condition as an infant commonwealth, in despite of the recklessness which has marked the course of her legislators in the authorization of an enormous indebtedness, or of the dishonesty of some of her officials in appropriating to their own uses large sums of the public revenue, and for all that she has been for the last seven years the receptacle of all the useless merchandise that could not be disposed of in other quarters, but which has here been magically turned to gold, to give life and energy to the business affairs of other countries; and for all this, we say, there are unquestionable evidences around us that her finances are improving, gradually, but certainly and surely, and that the era of her disenthralment is not so far in the distant future as the deponding at home and the ill advised abroad are too apt to imagine. From the past our people have learned prudence, and the profit of the lesson is beginning to manifest itself. Recklessness in trade is becoming less observable, and the saving fact that goods purchased are to be, or should be paid for, is no longer deemed unworthy of attention. Some solicitude, too, about the admittance of credit, of the extent and duration, is beginning to be entertained. The mere disposition of goods, with implied understanding that they are to be paid for at convenience, has been rumous to many who have appeared to be doing a lucrative business. In the nominal absence of a credit system, we have been laboring under the worst that could have been possibly devised, since what have been called cush sales, have meant at mearest a fortuight's credit, which, in the majority of cases, runs to second steamer day, or steamer atter that, and so on—the particular day in some instances never arriving.

Progress of the Niger Expedition.

[From the Colonization Herald for November.]

Advices from Africa state that the expedition fitted of England for the purpose of exploring both branches a Niger, by the steam propeller Dayspring, in char Dr. Baikie, R. N., loft the Brass or Kowara river for these on the 10th of July all well. The the Niger, by the steam propelier Dayspring, in charge of Dr. Bakke, R. N., left the Brass or Kowara river for the Niger, on the 10th of July, all well. The expedition is composed of firty Kroomen, twenty five natives of the countries bordering on the Neger, and fourteen Europeans, menuding Dr. Bakke, Lieutenant Glover, Mr. May and Dr. Davis, of the Boyat Navy a naturalist and botanist, with Captain Grant and engineers. It is the intention of Mr. Laird to form trading posts on the banks of the river at the most eligible situations for the collection of cotton, shea, outter and other productions of the interior, provided the climate effers no insuperable obstacles. As by his contract with the Admiralty he is bound to convey deck passengers of the African race, who can read and write English, from Fernando Po to all parts below the Niger and Chadda, a new element of civilization will be introduced into the interior by the return of liberated Africans to their native country in considerable numbers.

Another expedition is now exploring the Congo river. It is commanded by Ladislaus Magyar, of the Portuguese army, accompanied by men of science. His orders are to observe how European powers, of all ranks, are now engaged in attempting to open connections with the interior of Africa. No doubt these explorations will open the way for general missionary and commercial operations in the central regions of this long unknown continent.
